To whom it may concern

The RSPCA New South Wales relies on donations, pet adoptions, annual fundraising events and bequests to fund much of its operational work.

For us, being a member of Charity Wills means being part of an extremely professional arrangement where there is a strong commitment to promoting the importance of charity bequests to the general public and to other charities.

As our funds are limited, we believe any extra assistance in bringing the concept of charity bequests to a wider audience is valuable. Charity Wills also has the legal expertise to advise clients and charity organisations on the legal specifics of will making.

This program is a winner for both the user and bequest recipient. It avails the recipient charity with a measure by which to gauge a future resource stream while providing an invaluable opportunity to get to know the supporter throughout their lifetime.

As a marketing tool, I believe this service can only grow in popularity as the electronic age forges forward.
